No, Wyoming does not require any specific courses for graduation for the Class of 2026. Wyoming requires three years of instruction in social studies, including economic systems and institutions.

PROJECTED GRADE FOR CLASS OF 2031

No policy change is pending that would change Wyoming's grade.

HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION STANDARDS

Wyoming's statutes and regulations require each school district to provide educational programs sufficient to meet uniform student content and performance standards at the level established by the State Board of Education in specified areas of knowledge and skills. These are broken down into "common core of knowledge" and "common core skills." The skills include "personal financial management skills." While Wyoming's laws and regulations require personal finance training to be made available to students, there are very few substantive financial literacy education standards, resources, or tools found on the Department of Education's (DOE) website. Economics must be taught as part of the social studies credits for graduation, but minimal personal finance concepts are included in those standards. Wyoming's Career and Vocational Education Content and Performance Standards also include modest personal finance concepts.

CAVEAT

Although personal financial management is required to be taught, the DOE does not have a financial literacy web page for administrators and educators with guidance, educational standards, resources, tools, and professional development training to help this successfully occur. It is not clear how Wyoming measures student achievement in financial literacy or how the state monitors local school district implementation of the financial literacy education requirement. It is very likely that the quality and quantity of personal finance education in the state varies greatly from school district to school district. According to NGPF's 2026 State of Financial Education Report only 33.6% of high school students attend schools that require them to take a personal finance course as a local graduation requirement. Nearly 6% of high school student attend schools where personal finance does not appear to be taught at all.
