

Call for Letters of Inquiry

The National Endowment for Financial Education (NEFE) announces a call for research letters of inquiry (LOIs) for its 2023 Grant Cycle.

NEFE provides funding for rigorous, innovative and actionable research that seeks to improve the public's financial well-being and has the potential to make a profound contribution to the field of financial education.

We welcome original research questions and replication studies that align with our funding priorities.

Research projects must use rigorous empirical and/or theoretical analysis. Original data is welcome but not required.

Our grant cycle remains open to all eligible concepts, but we give preference to well-designed projects that align with the following four topic areas:

- Measurement: Studies that re-evaluate current financial literacy metrics and how financial literacy, behavior, perception, knowledge and skill can be measured more effectively.
- Systemic Inequality: Studies that investigate knowledge, skill and wealth disparities, especially among populations that are statistically more likely to experience systemic barriers to improving their financial well-being.
- Data and Methodological Limitations: Studies that examine bias—specifically as it pertains to personal finance—to help our field identify knowledge gaps and to strengthen research data and design by including traditionally less heard voices.
- Youth Focus: Studies that examine inconsistencies in exposure to financial education among youth in the U.S. as well as variations in financial socialization and education within family units.
